IE, one of the world’s leading management schools, is the ideal place for Veterans of the United States Armed Forces who are looking to continue their international experience and transitioning to a business career.

The leap from military service to finding a place in the workforce can be challenging. Coming from the military’s framework and clear-cut career progression, it may be difficult to adjust to the business world. Many veterans find it difficult to rise from project management to decision-making positions without an advanced degree. This is why graduate education is a useful tool to land the job you want.

IE’s education and professional training outline these differences to help veterans, such as you, with the transition, while IE’s Careers Management Center will provide the tools to help you to identify and land the position you desire.

Furthermore, IE is continuously working to obtain the most international faculty and diverse student body possible, and is firmly committed to supporting women in leadership and senior management positions.

Europe offers a unique educational and cultural experience in a diverse, dynamic and multicultural environment. This offers you an opportunity to gain global experience, developing assets that will set you apart from the competition, and are essential in a constantly changing world. IE is located in Madrid, Europe’s most vibrant capital, a city that boasts rich architecture, history and breathtaking modernity. It’s also home to more than 27,000 companies across different sectors. The city’s restaurants, cafés and theatres make it a hub of activity both day and night.

When looking for a school, I felt that a top-ranked international program would be the best way to leverage the international experience I had gained in the Marines, and provide continuous challenge and adventure. I was also looking for a program that would give me the opportunity to network with senior executives from the world that diverse backgrounds design to do. It’s also a job of offering thought leadership across the world that experience. Being surrounded by brilliant people, from all different countries, working to achieve something greater that united amount of time in something that I truly believe in. And that in the backing, the world you made here will be friends for life.

IE, one of the world’s leading management schools, is the ideal place for Veterans of the United States Armed Forces who are looking to continue their international experience and transitioning to a business career.

The leap from military service to finding a place in the workforce can be challenging. Coming from the military’s framework and clear-cut career progression, it may be difficult to adjust to the business world. Many veterans find it difficult to rise from project management to decision-making positions without an advanced degree. This is why graduate education is a useful tool to land the job you want.

IE’s education and professional training outline these differences to help veterans, such as you, with the transition, while IE’s Careers Management Center will provide the tools to help you to identify and land the position you desire.

Furthermore, IE is continuously working to obtain the most international faculty and diverse student body possible, and is firmly committed to supporting women in leadership and senior management positions.
